The shared fridge pact

For shared houses: fill it in together before your first grocery run and stick it on the fridge door.

Our rules

1. Talk to your housemates before shopping, not after. Which menu, who buys what, and how the cost is split. A shared-expenses app or a note in the house group chat is enough.
2. Respect everyone's diet. If someone is vegan, has celiac disease, or has an allergy, the rule is simple: their version gets made first, with clean utensils, and stored separately. Every recipe in the book comes with its alternative.
3. Labels with names. An unlabeled container belongs to everyone; a labeled container is sacred.
4. Whoever cooks doesn't wash the dishes (or only washes what they dirtied). A fair split keeps anyone from ending up hating session day.
5. A shared shelf for shared stuff: sauces, eggs, the basic pantry. And individual shelves for everyone's own food.
6. Weekly fridge cleaning, in turns, right before the cooking session.

How we organize

- ☐ Everyone cooks their own, but on the same day
- ☐ Taking turns: one person cooks each week
- ☐ Team session: oven, burners, and chopping/washing

Rota

| WEEK | COOKS | SHOPS | WASHES UP | CLEANS THE FRIDGE |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | | | | |
| | | | | |
| | | | | |
| | | | | |
| | | | | |

Diets and allergies in the house

Signed